

Abstract

Method for developing custom lasts. The method comprising developing a last and a test shoe from the last for an individual, the test shoe meeting at least one predetermined 5 criteria based on feedback from the individual, determining at least one measurement of the developed last, storing the at least one measurement and developing another last for another individual by modifying the stored at least one measurement.